Shared Prosperity.
Thriving Communities. Healthy State.

ABOUT THE BUDGET MATTERS POLICY SUMMITS: Lifting Up Everyone to Advance Progress for Washington

Strong communities, healthy families, opportunities to thrive: These are the kinds of things we all want for every Washingtonian. A person's opportunity to thrive shouldn't be determined by their race, ethnicity, or zip code. Yet statewide data make it clear that economic prosperity isn't being shared equitably by everyone, in part because of policies that continue to perpetuate structural racism. This has to change. Allowing everyone to benefit from economic growth is good for Washingtonians, good for our economy, and good for the future progress of our state. And at a time when the wellbeing of middle- and lower-income people is threatened by harmful federal policy proposals, it's more important than ever that we work together across our state to lift up everyone.

Convening over 300 policymakers, advocates, community leaders, students, media reps, and other civic-minded Washingtonians, the Washington State Budget & Policy Center will host two half-day Budget Matters policy summits—one each in Spokane and Seattle.

ABOUT WASHINGTON STATE BUDGET & POLICY CENTER

Washington State Budget & Policy Center is a research and policy nonprofit that advocates for social and economic state policies that lift up low and moderate income households and eliminate disparities based on race. Through credible, research-based data and analysis, we work with grassroots organizations and coalitions across the state to champion policies that help ensure Washington state's budget advances the wellbeing of our state and its people.
